PRORATA

Every candidate is supposed to write an essay of 50 to 60 words. A candidate who writes less than 50 words will have his / her essay marked on prorate. E.g. A candidate who writes only half the expected length that is about 30 words will have his or her grammar mark over half of total mark that is 2½.

Therefore, such a candidate cannot score more than 2½ for grammar. If this Candidate makes 10 mistakes, he / she scores 0 for grammar. Where this criterion is used it should be clearly stated by the examiner. e.g. Total length of essay 30 words. Therefore, grammar is marked on prorata

NB. A candidate loses ¼ mark for every grammatical mistake made.

PRORATA TABLE

NO. OF WORDS UP TO	GRAMMAR MARK	MISTAKES TO SCORE ZERO
50 and above	5	20
40 – 49	4	16
30 – 39	3	12
20 – 29	2	08

For example, if a candidate writes about 3o words and commits 12 mistakes, the calculation of his or her grammar mark should be as follows

12 errors; GR = 12x ¼ = 3 3-3=0
This candidate's grammar mark = 0
NB. Please where the examiner is marking the essay using the prorata formula, this should be clearly stated on the answer script.
E.g. Essay of 30 words
GR is over 3
12 errors; GR = 12 x ¼ =03 3-3=0

MEANINGLESS ESSAY

Is an essay that does not make sense? E.g. Compilation of words either French or English words or both or in any other language. Such an essay attracts Zero.

1. A candidate scores zero (0) if he /she:

Each grammar mistakes is underlined and a stroke put in the left hand margin to represent the error made.

Each stroke represents ¼ mark;

Content marks are indicated in the right-hand margin while grammar mistakes are indicated in the left-hand margin.

The total number of mistakes is deducted from the marks for content to score the total mark for the question.

Note

A consequential error should be ringed but should not be penalized. E.g c'est un montre blanc. Blanc is a consequential error because the candidate used blanc to agree with ''un''. Hence we should not penalize him for the use of blanc instead of blanche.

We should penalize him for the use of '' un '' before montre. A repeated error is ringed but not penalized
